SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 1874.

THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR

From all quarters there inflation is not especially favored and from many places which until now were supposed to be its strongholds come expressions of unbounded gratification at the decisive course of the President in vetoing the Senate finance bill. The sound money men who believe the credit of the nation was staked on his decision are of course delighted. The inflationists, chagrined and full of bitterness at their defeat, at first blustered, threatened to cut loose from the party and in some cases, even, to organize an uprising in the South and West. They have, however in a measure recovered from this first outburst of rage, and though no less bitter are quietly laying their plans for the future.

Reports that may be relied upon as very nearly accurate, state that by no possibility can a majority of more than five votes be obtained in the Senate for a point blank inflation measure hence there cannot be the most remote liability of a passage of the bill over the veto. This the inflationists in Congress are well aware of, and their next move is looked for with deep interest. That they have not given up their hopes of ultimate success is not for a moment to be believed and it is hardly probable that they will make at present a final fight upon the issue of inflation pure and simple. Some compromise measure will undoubtedly be agreed upon and offered, and while we do not think it may receive support from those who are opposed to the first bill it was rendered dangerous and unpopular by its association with the opposition to the first veto. Its danger lies and its success as a measure, as connected with the veto are and its progress is fairly watched for it proves it may be attained, harmless as far as near the present issue is to it. It will work a ready accomplished in the interest of sound currency and leave the finances in worse condition than before.

The veto was a grand act and the President has gained undying honors for it. He stands against the immense pressure brought to bear upon him by the advocates of the bill as the only man who has the courage to meet a measure which we believe to be at the principles of the government at which it had become a by-word. There has been a lasting disgrace to the country. But this is not the end. The next relief for the finances is not secured, but there is a more healthy feeling has been created. It is thrown back upon Congress—where it was at first before—and it remains with that body to pass some measure which shall put an end to this feverish season of unrest. Will they do so. The future is yet dim and uncertain though the veto has thrown upon it a bright light. The relations, though shaken in their action, are not destroyed. They were defeated in their grand issue they are not to be beaten in the strategy they are more than ply. Judging by the past they will learn no lessons unemployed to gain their ends. Already they declare that they will override the Congress they will in the session. The question is then, for the country to decide. Does it think the veto a strong one? Does it think that the majority of the people agree in the President's view of the national legislature must be heard and that they must make no side-issues or distract them from the question with better business, be property the interests of the country. Let us flash on the people their true and square dealing are the people to see all shades of opinion and know that is on this issue and act accordingly. The veto in the light which it is placed before the people will be sustained.

The West there is a struggle for the right of inflation. The people are without a cash for money and are willing to pay high rates of interest. They are only in need of relief and upon a superficial view think that an expansion of the currency would afford it. The city of New York has a sadder but sound and of honest action. Its interests are tied they are willing to let the future take care of itself, even if it brings beggary. Speculators debtors and politicians encourage and foster these views, and the people there see but one side of the question. What is needed is to show them the other that no true prosperity can fall where one of a depreciated, fluctuating and irredeemable currency and that the future must be looked to as well as the present. No good argument can be brought to controvert these facts, and the anti-inflation leagues which are forming in many of the States will be encouraged in their work of bringing the truth before these people.

The decision on the knowledge of this vital subject is the best course at can be desired to fortify the people against the schemes of the inflationists. To accomplish this organization is necessary and the Massachusetts League strikes the keynote when it requests the co-operation of other movements throughout the country list to unite the people in demanding that our Government shall redeem in every pledge it has given regarding its financial promises at all, to make exact the people that a fixed standard of value is vital to every department of labor and trade that self interest is only with common honesty demands it at the present to re-establish a currency has a fair currency shall be kept.

Upon being asked if the veto would not break up the Republican party into two sectional camps Mr Morton informed a Herald correspondent — No sir the party may be shaken a little, but it will not be broken. It is no more divided upon this currency question than the Democratic party, and our Democratic friends are very much mistaken if they think our lines are more endangered than theirs by differences of opinion on the currency or banking or on any of these financial questions. Nevertheless, in the end the just demands of the West and the South for more currency will prevail, for this is only the beginning of this conflict."

The Tribune's Washington despatch states that the President informed Mr. Garfield that he should approve a free banking bill which provided that, as new notes were issued, greenbacks to one half the amount of the new issue should be retired, this process to continue until the greenback circulation is reduced to three hundred millions.

The New York Herald's correspondent at Frankfort re-echoes the reports from other quarters of the excellent impression made by the veto, which is of vast importance in allaying the fears of constant expansion and points out the only rational mode of returning to a sound financial basis.

The extravagance of the Republican party is often alluded to, but we seldom hear of the facts which show that retrenchment has been the rule for some years. In 1866 there were 8698 persons employed in the Internal Revenue Department. Now there are 3383.

Mr. Starkweather of Connecticut, who was subjected to some unpleasant charges in connection with District of Columbia affairs, has appeared before the committee charged with the investigation of such affairs, and has been completely exonerated.

The native chief and head man, as well as the foreign residents, desire that the United States shall extend a protectorate over the Navigators Islands. That should have been talked of before the decline of the whale fishery.

CONGRESSMEN ON THE VETO.

The Washington special of the New York Times gives the following as the comments of prominent Senators and Representatives on the President's veto of the finance bill.

Senator Morton listened to the reading of the message with marked surprise. Perhaps the most forcible expression of his views is contained in this single sentence "The President is mistaken if he thinks the mouth of the Mississippi can be hammered with straw." Mr Beck, Democrat, of Kentucky, said upon hearing that a veto message had been sent in, "That gives us Democrats the President next term." Speaker Blaine remarked on hearing this yesterday declaration of Beck, "that is discounting the nuts for very much more than its value." Heister Clymer, a leading Pennsylvania Democrat, says that he will be obliged to support the administration in this veto message. Albright of Pennsylvania admits that the message was a great surprise, and believes its effect will be injurious. Wm D Kelley does not complain of the veto. He did not vote for the bill, and is not surprised at the veto. Dennis of Iowa, from a strong grange district, says that unless there is some remedy devised, the gravity of the consequences can scarcely be estimated. Stannard of Missouri, the merchant Representative from St. Louis, who has not been classed as an inflationist, is greatly surprised at the veto. He is confident that the voters in his section will be dissatisfied with the message and its results. George F. Hoar thinks no serious results will follow, and feels assured that a better bill will now be passed. He believes a satisfactory compromise between the sections entirely possible. Gen Hawley of Connecticut thinks the veto measure is one of the most notable and commendable of Gen Grant's career. The Massachusetts representatives are especially jubilant. They are confident that the veto measure will do much to secure Gen Butler's defeat in the coming campaign, and that it will convince the people that the alleged intimacy of the relations between Butler and the President is a fiction. Sunset Cox declares that the President has shown statesmanship wisdom and patriotism. Alfred C Harper of Pennsylvania is disappointed at the message, and is confident that it will be received with disfavor by the Pennsylvania manufacturers. Philetus Sawyer of Wisconsin, a representative Western man, is not carried away with the extreme sections enthusiasm manifested in night by representatives from his section. Luyclebiehl of Tennessee, a noted character in his section and an oddity in the House, says of the message "It is cold blooded murder. Cannon of Illinois believes if some compromise cannot be effected by an equitable free banking bill, the political complications in Illinois will be very serious. He thinks something like the Maynard bill with the foster amendment might be a satisfactory compromise. The people of his district will never accept any financial theories which will compel them to pay their mortgage debts in a currency in which they were not contracted. Mr McDul of Missouri and other representative men from this section think that if this message is not followed by some banking measure which shall be fair to the West the consequences may be a political revolution. Geo Hoar of Worcester, one of the leading Western members entertains similar views. He believes that the West has not been rightly treated, and is moreover hopeful of a satisfactory compromise. Gen Butler has left Washington on record. His record is that if the President should veto the bill he would deserve impeachment, in declaring that the House cannot legalize the issue of the $44,000,000 reserves which the President himself, in the name, ordered to be issued.

The same correspondent telegraphs to the Times —

Of course, the veto will be sustained. The Senate has been reinforced by two more hard money votes since the bill was passed and besides this it is said that some of the Senators who voted for the bill will now vote to sustain the veto. But the debate which will be brought on is likely to be unprecedented in bitterness, and may last for several weeks, although it is unquestionably anticipated that it will run longer than one or three days. Meantime as fruitless business more can, attempts will be made to effect some compromise by which the House bill can be amended with such provisions for alternate resumption and resumption. Of course, it is wholly impossible to guess at present whether any proposition in that direction will be entertained by the inflationists.

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT

BANGOR, April 21, 1874.

Mr Editor — On account of certain parties interested in the B Block, existing rubber, confusing reports are floating from the Chief Engineer of it since that he could have given a decided opinion of the Little Giant. I think I have published the following letter

Your obedient servant
JOSEPH S SMITH,
Ex-Chief Engineer Fire Department.

FIRE DEPARTMENT OFFICE,
City Hall Boston, Feb 16th, 1874.

Messrs. Gleason & Jones —

Gents: In answer to your inquiry of the 16th inst. as to my opinion of the power and stability of the small Chemical Fire Engine as Furnished the City of Boston during the Board Subjects, and stationed at the building known as the Gymnasium, as an auxiliary to the extinguishment of fires, I would say, first that I approve of its combinations by which it is used, and Chemical Engine Companies attached to it is superior to the ordinary engine as a fire subject is a valuable auxiliary in every respect. Every Department, many of the small fires in the early stages of the flames will in very desirable in the final extinguishment, where but little water is required to drown the flames, as well as manifold other things places your little engine would be capable of doing, and it is but wishing to purchase the same. I can cheerfully recommend it.

I have the honor to remain

...ANNOUNCEMENT FROM LONDON.

LONDON, April 24. The Morning Post says "President Grant once more has saved his country from a great peril. His veto deserves full as much applause and gratitude as the victories of Vicksburg and the Wilderness." It has no doubt that eventually the West and South will be grateful for the act.

...ENTS IN INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24th. At a meeting of workingmen last night, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That the Trades Unions and workingmen of Indianapolis thank Senator Morton and our Representatives who have so nobly stood with the interests of the Western States with recent financial debates and action in Congress

Resolved, That we urge that they give no consent to an adjournment of Congress until some satisfactory financial relief be granted to the industrial interests of the great West.

CELEBRATING THE EVENT.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass, April 24. Flags were displayed here this morning, and a salute fired at 12 noon, yesterday, in honor of the President's veto

NEW YORK CITY

...ARSON AND ROBBERY AMONG CHINESE

New York, April 24. A three-story wooden house on Stockton st., Brooklyn, which had been raised for the purpose of underpinning, fell yesterday morning, burying several mechanics in the ruins. Two men have been taken out dead and three or four with terrible injuries and probably fatally injured. One that was caught in the timbers at the corner of the building and his head was exposed to view while his body was crushed.

FIRE.

The names of those killed by accident in the explosion this afternoon were: Thos Burns, 15 September, and Moses D Osborn, boss carpenter. Thomas Goldwich and Oscar Murphy, masons, were fatally injured, and Saml Davis, from Elgin, Illinois. Matthias Goldwich and Thomas Lobbes were badly hurt. A boy is missing and is supposed to be under the ruins.

THE PRESIDENT'S VIEWS

NEW YORK, April 24. President Grant is reported as having spoken yesterday of the veto message as follows

"I do not exaggerate when I say that the desire to economize thoroughly discharge my duty has caused me more sleepless nights than anything that ever required my approval. The number of schemes for the financial relief of the country which have been sent me both by friends and those who wish well for the party, would make a library in themselves. Some of the suggestions were unique, but the most all were an uninteresting as a debate in Congress. NOW PERSIMMONS TOOK CAR OF DE BABY.

(The N. Y. Sun for May has a great variety of good stories and capital pictures having come to hand without any doubt, the best and most judicious ever published. Instead of cataloguing the bright things, we shall take up all our space with a poem by Lizzie W. Champney, which has delightful sentiment and distinctly outlines two characters while telling a pretty story.

Persimmons was a colored lad
Way down South where he was born
A fact I state to grieve what he had
Was given him by his mother
But he'd had duties ever since
He was so high, if he was an inch
Which fact chimes and jingle always,
He minded it more better
He loved the calmness of the nights,
And sweetness, these of summers,
I trust it goes not saying that
He loved watermelon dinners
And fervently at meetin' too
On every Sunday night.
Had with the elders shout and pray
By the pine knots burning light,
And sing their truest melodies,
With voice so fat and strong,
And could a hymn that he'd learned them
Given the negro's deepest song

City of Bangor.

Ordinance concerning Levels and Street Maps to be used in defining the duties of the City Engineer

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Bangor, as follows:

Sec. 1. The City Engineer shall occupy an office provided by the City of Bangor in which he shall keep all the field notes, instruments, and all plans and profiles, records of surveys, and papers relating to Engineering work of every description now in the hands of the City Engineer, and which shall have been prepared by or at the request of his predecessors, and all other plans and papers which he may hereafter make or receive in the discharge of his official duties. He shall also keep in his office a correct map of the City, showing the streets, lots and buildings thereon, which shall be corrected from time to time as the Assessors may be sent up the Treasurer's safe, if not kept there at all times, and which shall be used by the Committee on Streets, and by the City Council, when required.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of said Engineer to make all surveys, levels, plans, profiles, specifications and records required by the Mayor and Aldermen or Committee of the City, or City Council, and all engineering required for city purposes, lay out new streets in connection with the associated engineers, and establish the grade of such streets, and the grade and stake out the work for making new and cutting down and filling up old streets, survey and define the lines of existing streets when ordered by the City Council, or requested to do so by the Street Commissioner; superintend the sweeping of sidewalks of the city and parts of intersections of streets and preserve and cause all grass monuments disturbed or liable to be disturbed in making and raising streets, the labor to be furnished by the Street Commissioner—perform all duties required by the Street Commissioner, and keep accurate and separate and all other clerical duties not otherwise provided for by the Ordinances, copy into the records of the City Council, and file away in proper compartments in his office, with surveillance satisfactory to the Mayor and Aldermen.

TREATY between the United States of America and the Republic of Honduras Extradition. Concluded June 28, 1867. Ratification exchanged at Comayagua December 12, 1873. Ratified by President of United States January 10, 1874. Ratification exchanged at Quito November 12, 1873. Proclaimed December 25, 1873.

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, a treaty for the mutual extradition of criminals, fugitives from justice, between the United States of America and the Republic of Honduras was concluded and signed by the plenipotentiaries of the two countries at Quito on the twenty-eighth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, which treaty is in the English and Spanish languages, both versions being authentic, and is word for word as follows:

Extradition treaty between the United States of America and the Republic of Honduras.

The United States of America and the Republic of Honduras, having deemed it conducive to the better administration of justice and the prevention of crime within their respective territories, that all persons convicted of or accused of the crimes enumerated hereinafter, having fugitives from justice, shall, under certain circumstances, reciprocally deliver up such persons as may be found within the limits of each other, and the President of the United States has for this purpose named Rumsey Wing, a citizen of the United States, as Minister Resident to the Republic, as Plenipotentiary on the part of the United States, and the president of Honduras has named Francisco Lainez, Minister of the Interior and of Foreign Affairs, as Plenipotentiary on the part of Honduras, who, having reciprocally communicated their powers, and the same having been found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles, viz:

ARTICLE 1.

The Government of the United States and the Government of Honduras mutually agree to deliver up such persons as may have been convicted of or charged with the crimes specified in the following article, commit, and within the jurisdiction of each other, shall be found within the territories of the other, provided that such surrender shall take place only upon such evidence of criminality as, according to the laws of the place where the fugitive or accused may be found, such persons may be lawfully arrested and tried, had the crime been committed within the jurisdiction.

ARTICLE 2.

Persons convicted of or accused of any of the following crimes shall be delivered up, in accordance with the provisions of this treaty:

1st. Murder, including assassination, parricide, infanticide, and poisoning.

2d. The crime of rape, arson, piracy, and mutiny on ship-board when the crew, or a part thereof by firing or other violence over-power the commanding officer, have taken possession of the vessel.

3d. The crime of forgery, that being understood to be the fraudulent making or counterfeiting another's hand-writing with intent to commit any crime, or the fraudulent alteration of any writing, or the fraudulent uttering and publishing of forged writing.

4th. The crime of robbery, that being defined as the felonious taking of money, goods or effects from the person of another by violence or intimidation.

5th. The crime of forgery, which is understood to be the fraudulent making or counterfeiting of any public, sovereign or governmental act of the other country, with intent to defraud any body politic or corporate, or any citizen or inhabitant of such country, and the fraudulent uttering or publishing of the same with like intent, knowing the same to be forged or counterfeited.

6th. The fabrication or circulation of counterfeit money, either coin or paper, of public bonds, bank-bills and securities, and the forgery of any kind of titles to or instruments of credit, the counterfeiting of stamps, dies, seals, and marks of the public authorities, the administrative authorities, and the sale or circulation thereof.

7th. Embezzlement of public property, committed within the jurisdiction of either party by public officers or depositaries.

ARTICLE 3.

The stipulations of this treaty shall not be applicable to crimes or offenses of a political character, and the persons delivered up, charged with the crimes in the foregoing articles, shall not be prosecuted for any crime committed previously to that for which his or their extradition may be asked.

ARTICLE 4.

If the person whose extradition may have been applied for, in accordance with the stipulations of the present treaty, shall have been arrested for offenses committed in the country where he has sought refuge, or if he shall have been sentenced therefor, the extradition may be deferred until his acquittal, or the expiration of the term for which he shall have been sentenced.

ARTICLE 5.

Requisitions for the extradition of fugitives from justice shall be made by the respective diplomatic agents of the contracting parties, or in case of the absence of these from the country or when extraditions may be made by superior consular officers. If the person whose extradition is asked for shall have been convicted of a crime, the requisition shall be accompanied by a copy of the sentence of the court that has convicted him, authenticated under the seal of such court, and by proofs showing that the said person is identical with the one mentioned in such sentence.

ARTICLE 6.

Requisitions for the extradition of fugitives from justice shall be made by the respective diplomatic agents of the contracting parties, or in case of the absence of these from the country or when extraditions may be made by superior consular officers. If the person whose extradition is asked for shall have been convicted of a crime, the requisition shall be accompanied by a copy of the sentence of the court that has convicted him, authenticated under the seal of such court, and by proofs showing that the said person is identical with the one mentioned in such sentence. Provided, That in the case of fugitives from justice, the judge or other magistrate of the country where the fugitive is found shall have power to issue warrants for the apprehension of the fugitive, in order that he may be brought before the judicial authority which is competent to examine into the question of extradition. If, then, according to the evidence and the law, it be decided that the extradition is due in conformity to the treaty, and the fugitive shall be delivered up, according to the forms prescribed in such cases.

ARTICLE 7.

This treaty shall continue in force for ten (10) years from the day of the exchange of ratifications, but in case neither party shall have given to the other six (6) years previous notice of its intention to terminate the same, this treaty shall continue in force for ten (10) years longer, and so on.

The present treaty shall be ratified, and the ratifications exchanged at the capital of Honduras within two months from the date of its signature, or sooner if possible.

In testimony whereof the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the present treaty in duplicate, and have hereunto affixed their seals.

Done in the city of Quito, capital of the Republic of Ecuador, this twenty-eighth day of June, in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-two.

RUMSEY WING. [L.S.]

FRANCISCO JAVIER LEON. [L.S.]

And whereas the said treaty has been duly ratified on both parts, and the respective ratifications were exchanged at Quito, on the 12th of November last.

Now, therefore, be it known that I, ULYSSES S. GRANT, President of the United States of America, have caused the said treaty to be made public to the end that the same and every article and clause thereof may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States and the citizens thereof.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the city of Washington this twenty-fourth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninety-eighth.

U. S. GRANT.
